UP TO DATE FOOTBALL TRICKS

Stagg of Chicago Says Old Time Tactics Will Not Win Championship.

Stagg, coach of the University of Chicago, says that up to date tricks on the gridiron will win most of the games this season.

After he had analyzed the recent scores Stagg made the prediction that old style tactics would not be likely to land any team on top this year. He attributed the good scores of some of the eastern teams to the presence of first class stars and the poor caliber of the beaten team, but declared that old fashioned football would be relegated to the discard later in the season when the championship contenders get together.

A Farmers' Exchange Launched. Another co-operative movement has been launched at Bellows Falls, Vt. The object of this new company, as set forth in the articles of incorporation, is to handle orchard, farm, dairy and food products of all kinds. Capital stock authorized is $50,000, divided into 5,000 shares, of which 2,500 are common stock and the remainder preferred, which has a fixed annual dividend of 8 per cent.

It is intended to place the stock among 100 farmers and shippers, and the wholesale house is to be located in New Bedford, Mass., where, it is said, higher market prices prevail than in either Boston or New York. The management claims to return farmers 10 to 20 per cent more than regular commission houses.

MUCH INTEREST IN THE ELECTION

Many County Offices to be Filled after Keen Contests. Borough Councilmen and School Directors. Large Vote being Polled.

Not for several years has so much interest been shown in a local election as has been manifested the past few days in the contests for the various borough, township and county offices which will be decided with the closing of the polls this evening. In almost every instance there has been a keen campaign and those who claim to be politically wise say that there will be vast majorities.

The voting started briskly this morning and kept up all day, a large vote being polled in every district. Several causes contributed to this, the unusual interest being the chief. Practically every county office is to be filled including sheriff, district attorney, clerk of the courts, register and recorder, prothonotary, director of the poor, county commissioner and county auditor. Almost the only offices unaffected are the judgeships.

E. H. Berkheimer, the Democratic nominee for register and recorder, had his election assured several weeks ago when his Republican opponent C. K. Gardner withdrew. But all other candidates have plenty of active opposition.

The campaign has been marked by unusually hard work on the part of all the candidates. Only five weeks intervened between the primaries and the general election and in order to get over the county some fast traveling had to be done—this in the face of bad weather conditions and poor roads.

In Gettysburg considerable interest attaches to the election of town councilmen and the new school board. Two of the present council are up for reelection, J. L. Butt in the first ward and Harry S. Trostle in the third ward. Mr. Butt has for his opponent Charles Weikert and Mr. Trostle, P. G. Breighner. In the second ward Jacob Kitzmiller will be succeeded either by John D. Keith, Republican nominee, or Martin Winter, the Democratic candidate.

The new School Code ends the terms of all the present members of the school boards and in all the districts of Adams County new boards will be chosen by today's elections. Gettysburg has only one member of the present board up for re-election, Prof. Calvin Hamilton. Prof. Hamilton and Dr. T. C. Billheimer are the two candidates for the six year term. There are four candidates for the two and four year terms, two to be elected in each instance. In the boroughs having wards the school directors are not chosen from wards as formerly but are chosen from the entire town. This also is a provision of the new School Code.

It is not believed that any serious consequences will follow.

READY TO LAY THE FOUNDATION

Wet Weather Delays Work on New Federal Building. Concrete Footing Over Two Feet Deep at Some Places. Brick Foundations.

All preparations for the commencement of operations on the new federal building have been completed and as soon as the ground dries sufficiently, a force of men will be put to work at laying the concrete footings.

The contract for this work has been awarded to Robert Wolf, of York. All the excavations have been made and it was expected that work would start this morning but several inches of water prevented. The footings under the partition walls will be ten inches in depth, under the main walls one foot and under the piers from one foot three inches to two feet two inches.

The foundation walls proper will be of brick, many of which are already on the site of the building and there will be no delay from this source after the piers are finished. The basement will have a five inch concrete floor.

The method of conducting the work is causing much interest among those who visit the scene of operations for it is on a larger scale and done in a different manner from any structure which has been erected here. More interest will attach to the work as it progresses.

DANIEL DRAWBAUGH

Harrisburg Telegraph: "The life of Daniel Drawbaugh who was believed by many people to be the real inventor of the telephone and who was acknowledged by all who knew him to be a rare genius, was one of those exceptions that prove the rule."

"Mr. Drawbaugh not only had extraordinary inventive talents, but he had a capacity for work that was enormous. Edison is not more indefatigable than Mr. Drawbaugh was. By all the rules of success the 'Wizard of Eberly's Mills' should have been at the top of the ladder but the fates seemed to have conspired against him."

"It does so happen occasionally, although so seldom that the rare instance of a career like Mr. Drawbaugh's should have the effect of making us ashamed of our failure to try, rather than of convincing us that 'the cards are stacked against us.'"

In a million human lives, you probably could not find another record where ability and courage, undaunted effort combined to bring so poor a reward."

THAT AUTO RUN

After traveling through the most disagreeable autumn weather that could well be imagined the participants in the sociability run of the Gettysburg Automobile Club reached Gettysburg on their return about four o'clock Monday afternoon. No accidents were reported on the way with the exception of one puncture, a good record in view of the condition of the roads. Dinner was taken at the Central Hotel, Hanover, and the route taken to Littleton from where a short cut home was determined upon, the general "inclemency of the weather" causing the autoists to give up the Taneytown and Emmitsburg ends of the tour.

CHESTNUT IN BOY'S NOSE

Some time during the early part of June, Ellsworth, the three year old son of Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Rushey, of Dillsburg, told his mother that he had put some cherry seeds up his nostrils, and could not get them out. A seed was removed and his mother, thinking that was all, soon forgot about the incident. Recently it was noticed that the boy had difficulty in breathing, especially when lying down. On Saturday morning the trouble was explained, when the lad blew another cherry seed from his nose.

CHESTNUT AND HICKORY BURNED

The forest fire burning on the Blue Ridge mountain between High Rock and Edgemont for three days and nights has been checked by a large force of mountain men, augmented by repair hands from the Western Maryland Railway. The repair hands were called out to protect the property and help fight the fire. A large amount of chestnut oak and hickory lumber has been destroyed.

PREPARING FOR DICKINSON GAME

Great preparations are being made at Carlisle for the big foot ball game between Gettysburg and Dickinson at that place on Saturday. A special train will be run from Gettysburg on account of the game and other roads entering Carlisle will give special rates.

Dickinson is confident of a victory and word from there says that odds of two to one are being offered against Gettysburg while even money is offered that Dickinson will win by twelve points. The Carlisle collegians seem to base their hopes principally on their showing against the Indians and on Gettysburg's showing against State and Lafayette.

Dickinson has a fast and well working foot ball machine and seems to have good reason for its high hopes. The orange and blue has not shown up the form that was hoped for and some material improvement in their style of play will have to be shown at Carlisle on Saturday if anything favorable is to be hoped for. Barring any unforeseen occurrences the entire first team will line up for there are no serious injuries and the strongest team which has represented Gettysburg this season should face the red and white.

Friday evening there will be a mass meeting in Brua Chapel. It is expected that almost the entire student body will accompany the team to Carlisle. The College Band will be taken along and the sidelines should be quite busy. Dickinson is practicing hard for its end of the cheering and the game will be a brilliant event.

TWO MEN HURT IN RUNAWAY ACCIDENT

Charles Ryan, York, and Clarence Duterra, McSherrystown, while returning from Detective Thad S. Stroman's bungalow, near Hollywood, met with a runaway accident in which both were hurt.

The two men were riding in a Jenny Lind and in going down the hill near Hollywood the horse scared and began to kick and then ran away. Both men were thrown out and were in a dazed condition when picked up by an outing party. Ryan was taken to his home. His injuries, which consist of a cut in the forehead and a number of body bruises, gave him considerable pain last night. Duterra's injuries are considered of a less serious nature.

The horse ran about five miles before it was caught. The vehicle was demolished and the harness badly torn.

MEDAL OF HONOR GIVEN SOLDIER

Unique Distinction for Captain Miller, well known here, on Account of his Disobedience of Orders on Third Day of Battle.

Captain William E. Miller, of Carlisle, who has a number of friends in Adams County, and who has visited at the home of Dr. T. T. Tate within the past few weeks, bears the distinction of being the only soldier upon whom any government has bestowed a medal of honor for disobedience of orders. The story is told in a dispatch from Carlisle to the New York American which says:

During the battle of Gettysburg he risked court martial by disobeying the implicit instructions of his chief, and it is brought out that by so doing his action defeated Stuart's object to reach the rear of the Union army. In after years a grateful government decorated the captain for gallantry for "exceeding his orders."

When the morning of the third day of Gettysburg dawned the task of defending the right of the Union army fell to General D. McM. Gregg, with 4,000 men. Among these were the Third Pennsylvania Cavalry, deployed beyond the barb of the fishhook, and ordered to hold their positions in the woods. In the command of one of these squadrons was Captain Miller, then a boyish cavalry officer. His command consisted of four nominal companies, but did not number more than eighty effective men.

His orders were not to leave his position, for it was important that no part of the Confederate cavalry be permitted to break through and get at the wagon trains and the rear of the center defending Cemetery Ridge.

The charge of Pickett was launched at a preconcerted signal, which was also an order for General J. E. B. Stuart to charge on the extreme Union right. By breaking through he would have had the ammunition trains at his mercy and would have been directly in the rear of the defenders of Cemetery Ridge.

Stuart launched his main body of about 7,000 men against Gregg's front. Miller's squadron was still deployed in the woods with orders not to move out of the position. Stuart's men outnumbered any force that Gregg could bring to oppose him by two to one. The head of the attacking column had long since passed the spot where Miller and his eighty men were hiding in the woods. Miller grasped the situation. Turning to his lieutenant, William Brooke Rawls, of Philadelphia, Captain Miller said:

"I have been ordered to hold this position, but if you will back me up in case I am court martialed I will order a charge."

"I'm always ready to pitch in," the lieutenant replied, and the captain gave orders to rally his men. As soon as the line was formed the little squadron dashed out of the woods and hit the enemy's column about two thirds down from the head.

So unexpected was the charge that it bore right through the gray column, throwing it into confusion and cutting off, for a time, one third of the strength of the supporting force.

When Pickett's charge struck the Union center, the men in the cemetery had no fear from enemies in the rear. Wanger, in his book on "Organization and Tactics," a standard text book at the military schools, speaks of the conduct of Lord Cardigan, the commander of the British Light Brigade, at Balaklava, contrasting Cardigan's blind obedience to orders at Balaklava and Miller's disobedience of orders at Gettysburg.

JOHN F. COX.

Speaker of Penna. House of Representatives Dies Suddenly.

SIX NEW GOVERNORS ELECTED TODAY

Close Contests Expected in Several States.

Washington, Nov. 7.—Leaders of national politics are looking ahead with acute interest to the state elections today because of their possible bearing on the presidential campaign of next year.

The contests will afford the first opportunity for a formal popular expression since the bringing together of the first Democratic national house of representatives in sixteen years and the continent-spanning speech-making trip of President Taft.

In Massachusetts Governor Foss, formerly a representative in Washington, has led the Democratic forces; in New Jersey the election is held in the home state of a candidate for the Democratic nomination for president; in New York the issues are local, but the state is one always closely scanned by political observers; in Kentucky Representative Ollie James, one of the bulwarks of his party in congress, is a candidate for United States senator, and William J. Bryan and Speaker Champ Clark have campaigned for him.

Elections are being held in nearly all the states today. Six states, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Maryland, Kentucky, New Mexico and Mississippi will elect governors.

State senators and members of the lower house will be elected in Virginia.

New Jersey elects a legislature. The lower house and some county officers, including judges, will be elected in New York.

In Ohio mayors of cities and other municipal officers will be chosen. Nebraska elects university regents and judges. Many other states elect county officers.

California women will have a chance to vote for local officials except in San Francisco, where they were unable to register in time for election after the passage of the equal suffrage amendment.

SPEAKER COX DIES SUDDENLY

HIS POLITICAL CAREER

The Sudden Death of the Representative Came as a Great Shock to His Friends.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 7.—John Fremont Cox, speaker of the Pennsylvania house of representatives, died at his home in Homestead, after a brief illness from uraemic poisoning, from which he had been a sufferer for two years.

Recently his health improved, but during Sunday night he became very ill and his physicians were summoned. They remained with him until the end.

Under the act of 1905, which fixed salaries and positions in the legislature, the chairman of the committee on judiciary general becomes speaker. Representative Milton W. Shreve, of Erie, is therefore acting speaker.

In case of an extra session a new speaker would have to be elected, but it is believed that should this occur Shreve will be chosen.

John F. Cox for several years past had been prominent in the political affairs of Allegheny county. He came into the limelight of state-wide notice as speaker of the house of the present legislature and took a leading part in the shaping of the laws put on the statute books during the last session at Harrisburg.

In the various measures which aligned the Republican factions in vigorous opposition his position as parliamentary arbiter was no sinecure and at times he was called upon to smooth over some very troubled waters. Mr. Cox was born in Millin township, Allegheny, Pa., Oct. 6, 1852. He was reared on a farm and educated at Westminster college and Mount Union college, from which latter institution he was graduated. He taught school for some time; studied law and was admitted to the bar of Allegheny county in January, 1880.

Mr. Cox was burgess of the borough of Homestead for two years; served as a member of the house of representatives in the sessions of 1885 and 1887, and again elected in November, 1898. He was elected speaker of the house of representatives on Jan. 3, 1909, being the nominee of the Republican caucus over Frank B. McClain in a famous fight which involved the local option and other issues. He was re-elected to the speakership in the session of 1911 without much opposition.

The speaker cherished an ambition to be auditor general, but gave it up after he had been forced to relinquish the chairmanship of the state convention of 1909 through the opposition of political foes. He then started out to be a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor and accompanied the state candidates of 1909 on their tour. His candidacy was not pressed and he turned in for Tender. Last session when the bill for an additional court for Allegheny county was in the legislature it was generally understood that he was to be one of the judges in case the bill was approved, but the governor signed the bill for the county court instead.

New York, Nov. 7.—Mary Whedon Gates, thirty-three years of age, who was divorced from Charles G. Gates, son of the late John W. Gates, last August, secured a license to marry Romeo Miglietta, thirty-two years old, who resides in Florence, Italy, and who is engaged in the oil business.

Reprieve For Murderer.

Philadelphia, Nov. 7.—George Lee, a Chinaman, and Frank Endrakat, both sentenced to be hanged in Moyamensing prison Thursday, received a reprieve from the governor until Dec. 5. Both men had been reprieved several times before and the action was not expected.

How "Lifer" Can Earn Death.

Washington, Nov. 7.—A "life term" in prison who assaults another person with a deadly weapon is punishable with death, under a decision announced by the supreme court of the United States, upholding the constitutionality of a California statute.

Elmira, N. Y., Nov. 7.—Walter Tompkins, a fruit grower, his wife and their fourteen-year-old son perished in flames which destroyed his home at Addison.

Pure Bred and Sorub.

There is little apparent difference while young between the scrub and the pure bred animal if being reared under like favorable conditions. As maturity approaches the difference becomes more marked. Herein lies a good reason why in buying breeding animals those of mature age should be sought. This is especially true if the purchaser is a novice at judging and is compelled to depend upon his own resources.—Kansas Farmer.

UTAH GETS SILVER SERVICE

Anti-Mormons Have Chance to Present Tray Without Young's Portrait.

New York, Nov. 7.—The officers of the new battleship Utah will be able to decide for themselves whether or not their tray shall use a silver coffee tray engraved with a small portrait of Brigham Young, the founder of the Mormon church.

The silver service of 122 pieces made for the battleship by the citizens of Utah was formally presented and it contained the so-called "Brigham Young tray" against which a national committee of anti-Mormons protested in vain.

The protesters, however, have permission from the secretary of the navy to present to the Utah another tray, a duplicate of the original, except that the figure of the Mormon prophet is eliminated. This announcement was made by Mrs. H. S. Owen, of Salt Lake City, chairman of the committee which organized the national movement against the "Brigham Young" tray.

MADERO SWORN IN

Mexico City, Nov. 7.—Francisco I. Madero was inaugurated President of Mexico, succeeding President de la Barra, who filled in the gap after the executive now sworn in had ended the rule of General Porfirio Diaz.

The ceremony was brief and simple, following precedent, and took place before the members of congress in the chamber of deputies.

The galleries were filled with spectators, and in a section facing the speaker's platform were the members of the diplomatic corps.

HORSES TRAMPLE

HATS WORTH $10,000

Bolt Through Show Window of Millinery Store.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 7.—A pair of runaway horses stampeded through a show window in Liberty avenue, and wrecked the front of a big millinery establishment, trampling thousands in costly imported hats into a desolate ruin.

The team was attached to a wholesale grocer's dray and took fright at an automobile siren and bolted. Feathers and plumes flew in all directions. Ponderous hoofs dented and crushed the loveliest Parisian shapes. Great sheets of broken glass cut the ankles and legs of the animals and the costly millinery was bespattered with blood.

Both animals struggled and fought until they fell bleeding and exhausted on a bed of the costliest millinery that has come to Pittsburg to herald the advent of Yuletide.

It took block and tackle, veterinarians and diplomacy to extricate the horses. The window display, which an hour before was worth about $10,000, was reduced to a worthless lot of rubbish.

No More Free Typhoid Prophylactic.

Washington, Nov. 7.—So many applications have come to the war department from the various militia organizations for typhoid prophylactic that it has been found necessary to abandon its free issue. Guardsmen hereafter can obtain the preventive at its actual cash value—approximately 12½ cents for each individual inoculated—the amount to be charged against the federal allotment to the state for support of the militia.

Makes Good Boast and is Wounded.

Chicago, Nov. 7.—Charles Schultz, a baker, made good a boast that he would not be afraid to "tackle an armed robber," and lies perhaps fatally wounded in a hospital as a sequel. Two robbers, armed with revolvers, walked into a Westworth avenue saloon and ordered the baker, with several other men, to throw up their hands. Schultz sprang upon one of the thugs and in the struggle he was shot twice.

MacFarland Pleads Not Guilty.

Newark, N. J., Nov. 7.—A plea of not guilty was entered by Allison MacFarland before Chief Justice Gummers to the indictment charging him with the murder of Mrs. MacFarland by cyanide of potassium in their home at 346 Park avenue, Oct. 18. He will be placed on trial Monday, Jan. 8.

Keeping Pigs Healthy.

Never get the idea in your head that drugs and health are inseparable. For in most cases it will be found that what we keep out of the pigs' stomach has more to do with their health than what we put in.

Chestnuts are quoted at $300 per ton. This seems to be due not to a greatly increased consumption, but to the fact that a deadly plant disease is rapidly destroying most of the chestnut trees in the New England states.

A Thanksgiving Package

By SHEELA ESTHER DUNN

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

"We're too poor, John," said Mrs. Hardwick to her husband, "to have a Thanksgiving dinner this year. Besides, we've nothing to be thankful for. The loss of our little Molly has taken all the thankfulness out of me."

John said what he could to comfort his wife, but there is little comfort in such partings, and a happy family circle had been broken by the loss of little Molly, the baby. It had occurred as many misfortunes occur from poverty. This is the way it happened:

Mrs. Hardwick was taken ill when the baby was but six months old. John was away, and there was no one to attend to her or the household, and more especially the baby, who needed more attention than any of the family. A neighbor came in to take charge and concluded to send Molly away till the mother should have recovered. Mrs. Hardwick had an ant living at the next station on the railroad, and since the aunt could not leave her home it was decided to send the baby to her in the care of an express messenger. A bassinet was fitted out, the baby put into it and a tag with the address on it of both the shipper and the consignee tied on it. Then the "package" was taken to the messenger, who had charge of an express car, and he agreed to take it to its destination.

Unfortunately an accident occurred on the railroad that spoiled all these calculations. A man passing the scene of the accident, hearing a cry from some bushes beside the track, sought the cause and found Molly. Near by lay her bassinet. She was alive and apparently unharmed. A child falls without resistance and is therefore much less liable to injury than an adult. Besides, in this case the fall was supposed to have been broken by the bushes. The finder took up the child and its bassinet and carried it home to his wife. The bassinet had fallen into a ditch, and the address on it had been so discolored by the water that it was unintelligible.

Now, Molly had fallen into the hands of a couple who had no children and had given up all hope of having children. Not knowing where to send Molly, they concluded to keep her, at least till they could find her parents, and if not found they would adopt her.

After the accident the Hardwicks learned nothing of their child. The express messenger had been killed, they could not learn where the baby was at the time of the accident, and she was never found. But this was not remarkable, for on one side of the railroad was a stream, and the body might have been thrown from the car into the water and carried away by the current.

At any rate, there was not the slightest probability that Molly was alive, and her parents mourned her as lost. Mrs. Hardwick recovered from her illness, and the family affairs were set to rights, all except the return of little Molly.

The day before Thanksgiving tiny friends sent the Hardwicks a dinner for the occasion. But the mourning mother declared that she had not the heart to cook it. Thanksgiving day being a holiday, John stayed at home, but there was no rejoicing. The children found it difficult to make a holiday when their parents were so dismal. At noon the little ones began to feel hungry, and, yielding to their importunities, their mother consented to roast a turkey that had been sent them. She had hardly got it in the oven when there was the sound of a heavy truck stopping before the house. A man ran up the steps and kicked at the door. When it was opened the cause of his kicking was apparent. Both of the man's hands were in use. In one he held a bassinet, in the other a book.

"Sign for this," he said. There was a simultaneous exclamation of surprise and joy from the family as Molly was handed in. Looking up at her mother, she smiled and cooed. Mrs. Hardwick seized her and clasped her to her breast.

"Sign for this," repeated the man, holding out the book in which he took receipts for express matter.

Mr. Hardwick hurriedly scratched his name, and the expressman, running down the steps, mounted his wagon and drove away.

And so it was that the Hardwicks' holiday was made both a day of rejoicing and of thankfulness. When they sat down to dinner the baby in its bassinet was placed on the table, and while its parents and brothers and sisters ate turkey Molly pulled lustily on her bottle.

An explanation came in time. One day the couple who had taken Molly in hand from a friend of the Hardwicks' of their loss, and it became apparent that they were in possession of the missing child. This occurred the day before Thanksgiving, and a pleasant surprise was arranged for the parents. The baby was taken to an express office, where it was given in charge of a delivery man, who was instructed to carry it to its home.

That day was remembered as the Thanksgiving of their lives. At any rate, they had more to be thankful for than ever before or afterward. Little Molly was often referred to as the express package, and the suburbanite stuck to her. When she grew old enough she was told the story of her strange adventure and never ceased to wonder that one so young could have gone through so much.

The Milk House.

A good milk house is an important addition to the farm. It makes it possible to handle the most valuable crop that the farm raises most economically. The grain farmer would not hesitate to build a granary, so why then should the dairy farmer hesitate to build a milk house?

The Chilled Pig.

If a small pig is chilled it can be revived by dipping it into water as hot as you can bear your hand in, then wrapping it in warm flannel.

THE GRANGE

Conducted by
J. W. DARRROW, Chatham, N. Y.,
Editor of the New York State Grange

SCHEME OF CO-OPERATION.

Proposed by the New Hampshire State Grange.

The New Hampshire state grange is endeavoring to work out a successful plan of co-operation. To this end it is proposed to create a state purchasing agent who shall buy all necessary supplies and act as sales agent for farm produce. In order to make the volume of purchases large enough to command the lowest prices other states may unite with them. To secure ready capital it is necessary to raise $50,000 by having granges subscribe for stock at $5 per share. To make secure its future, in addition to the contemplated payment of 4 per cent interest on stock, it is deemed advisable to lay aside 3 per cent of the profits of each transaction. The committee suggests the organization of local co-operative clubs for breeding live stock, the care and disposal of fruits and the establishment of rural banks where needed. The committee is progressing cautiously in its work and has asked subordinate granges if they favor the appointment of a state purchasing agent by the executive committee or by the directors selected by the stockholders. Another query is, "Should there be a New England purchasing agency composed of agents from the several states whose sole purpose shall be to decrease costs by increased volume of purchases?" Another question is, "Should each stockholder have one vote only in case a body is incorporated and under the law in the organization and management of the corporation and shall a salary of $1,200, plus 2 per cent on all sales over $25,000 and less than $50,000, be given until a salary of $5,000 is reached?" Many other grange states are trying to solve this problem of successful co-operation, and the plan on which the New Hampshire grange is working may help others.

Headquarters at Washington.
The progressive state granges, as those of Pennsylvania, Maine, Washington, Colorado, Kentucky and Oregon are styled, will demand at the next meeting of the national grange that permanent headquarters with the office of national secretary be established at Washington, and that it shall be in charge of grangers with the true principles of the Order at heart, and that there shall be committees to transact all necessary business. This is merely a revision of an old and perhaps very good custom of the national grange, for prior to the election of the present incumbent the secretary's office was at the national capital. But the salary attached to the position did not warrant a continuation of the custom. However, he said there are distinct advantages which the location of an official headquarters at Washington will have, particularly during the sessions of congress. An increase of the salary of the secretary would not materially affect the cash assets of the national grange, now over $118,000.

While next May is the time to make the rose bed, it is a good idea to be getting the material ready for it now. Among the best recommended is a mixture consisting of one part of broken blue grass sods and one part of well rotted barnyard manure. As much of this as will be needed should be composted this fall and allowed to decay until the time for making the bed in the spring, when to the mixture should be added and thoroughly mixed one-half as much rather stiff clay soil. Rotted leaves may be used in part in place of the manure and will give excellent results.

Farm and Garden

AUTO TRUCK ON THE FARM.

Although the ordinary tonneau type of automobile is rapidly coming into general use on the farm and has proved its value for service as well as pleasure, there is one form of recent development, the auto truck, that has not received from farmers the attention it deserves, says the Farm and Ranch. This form of car is rapidly gaining a place for itself in the cities as a general delivery and hauling wagon and is destined to become as widely and favorably known on the farm, for it is an ideal general purpose car and has many advantages that recommend it for everyday farm use.

A car in daily use on a 600 acre Matagorda county (Tex.) farm is a light auto truck that has proved itself to be one of the most useful pieces of equipment on the farm. The car in question is a two cylinder, twenty-two horsepower model, with engine and working parts identical in all respects with those of the usual tonneau type. The tonneau, however, is replaced by an express wagon body about 7 feet

RUNNING A FARM AUTO TRUCK.

By 4, and fitted in this way the car will carry loads of up to a ton in weight over the average country dirt road at a speed of from three to twenty miles an hour. Its added hauling capacity in no way interferes with its use as a pleasure car, as it can be very easily converted by the addition of a couple of surrty seats built to fit on to the body and which can be put on or taken off in a moment like the ordinary hack seat. So rigged the truck can carry six or eight persons comfortably, covering as much ground in a day's run as the average road car. The truck is used for all the hauling except the very heaviest, and the work is done so much more rapidly than by team that there is a very marked saving in time, than which no other item on a farm runs more quickly into money. In addition to the direct saving in time an important feature in the use of the motor is the fact that in busy seasons all of the mules can be used exclusively for field work and there is no necessity for breaking into the regular plowing, cultivating or harvesting outfits just when they are most needed in order to get teams to do the various hauling jobs that are always coming up at such inconvenient times or to make unavoidable trips to town for freight, supplies, repair parts, etc.

Make Every Straw Count.

It is possible for careless help to leave a considerable portion of the grain crop in the field by neglecting to gather up scatterings, loose bundles, etc., and by hauling grain on open bottom racks. From a few pounds to a few bushels of grain may be saved every day, during stacking, by using a tight bottom rack or a canvas over the rack that will catch all of the grain that is shattered out of the heads.—Orange Judd Farmer.

Feed Costs More Than Care.

Build good hoghouses before bad weather sets in. Houses in the end are cheaper than feed at present prices, and hogs will not do their best when compelled to sleep out of doors in bad weather. A good feeding floor pays well. Enough feed is wasted on the average farm by throwing it into the mud and slush to pay the mortgages.

The fact is certainly not appreciated as fully as it should be that no food is so beneficial as milk in increasing the quantity and improving the quality of blood and thus building up a depleted and rundown physical system. A quart a day with all of the butter fat will do the business.

The sumac and hard maple stand at the head perhaps in the popular esteem for their gorgeous leaf coloring, but in seasons when the leaves of the hazel brush have time to ripen naturally they produce a variety as well as a quiet richness of coloring that is unsurpassed.

PEKIN'S FALL IS UNCONFIRMED

Dispatch From Chinese Capital Doesn't Mention Capture.

HONG KONG CELEBRATES

Rebels Are In Charge of the Cable at Shanghai and It Is Believed Report Was Sent Out to Gain Support.

Shanghai, China, Nov. 7.—A Chinese report that Peking has fallen and the emperor has fled has caused a wide sensation, but a private telegram from Peking makes no mention of such an occurrence.

The foregoing dispatch from Peking, giving no confirmation of the news of the capture of Peking by the Chinese rebels, were called forth by a report of elaborate details received and published by Chinese newspapers in San Francisco that the capital had fallen. Not only was the report of the fall of the Chinese capital received in San Francisco, but also in Hong Kong. Both the dispatches to San Francisco and Hong Kong were dated Shanghai, but the report above appears to nullify them. The Chinese rebels took charge of the cable station at Shanghai, and it is thought that they issued the reports in an effort to assist their cause.

Direct dispatches from Peking make no mention of an outbreak in the capital, while the state department at Washington has received no news, either confirming or denying that the city had fallen.

Hong Kong Observes Capture of Peking

Hong Kong, Nov. 7.—Six companies of English troops, including engineers, artillery and two regiments of Indian troops, are in readiness to proceed to Tien-Tsin. There was an extraordinary outburst of joy upon the receipt from Shanghai of a report that the rebels had captured the native city of Peking. Without waiting for confirmation from other than rebel sources, the city was soon in holiday array. Rebel flags appeared everywhere and crowds cheering exploded bombs and firecrackers.

Five Towns Taken by Rebels.

Shanghai, China, Nov. 7.—Advices received by the commanders of the revolutionaries tell of the capture of five more cities and the loss of one.

During the day three Chinese gunboats, forming a part of the fleet of Admiral Sah, were taken by the rebels. The ships put into Shanghai for provisions, not knowing that the city had been taken by the rebels and government established.

It is believed that Admiral Sah is in hiding.

Ching-Kiang, in the province of Kiang-Su, fell. All is quiet there. The city is a treaty port, second in importance only to Shanghai. The population is about 150,000.

Sao-Hing, in the province of Che-Kiang, famous for its mines; Quinsan and Kashing, in the same province, surrendered peacefully to the rebels. Order is being maintained.

With the exception of Wush all important points on the railroad from Shanghai to Ching-Kiang are now in the hands of the revolutionaries. Nankin is still outwardly loyal and quiet, but the Tartar general is so unpopular that an outbreak threatens.

The imperialists have recaptured Fung-Kwan, near the eastern border of Shen-Shi province. The rebels lost heavily and retreated towards Sian-fu.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 7.—The McNamara jury was completed as to challenges for cause.

Each side then was entitled to use its peremptory challenges, the defense having twenty and the prosecution ten. The defense, however, announced that it would offer further information to contest talesman George W. McKee.

The twelve men in the box were Robert F. Bain, carpenter; F. D. Green, orange grower; George W. McKee, real estate dealer; A. C. Winter, builder and contractor; W. N. Frampson, farmer; George W. Johnson, retired; Sam Mendenhall, orange grower; Frank Frakes, farmer; Byron Lisk, miller; M. T. McNeely, tailor; William F. Clark, retired, and George W. Morton, retired.

Report Another Mail Pouch Gone.

Greensboro, N. C., Nov. 7.—That a United States mail pouch, routed from Raleigh to New York, and containing $20,000, disappeared two weeks ago in a manner similar to the recently reported $25,000 theft of a pouch at Lynchburg, Va., became known here. Beyond admitting the loss of the package, officials refuse to discuss the matter.

22 Drown When Steamer Sinks.

UNCLE JOE IN WASHINGTON

Washington, Nov. 7.—Uncle Joe Cannon, of Danville, Ill., arrived with four white duck suits, a pain in his stomach and a gloomy opinion of the outlook for the Republican party. He explained the pain and the duck suits, but was rather uncommunicative on politics.

"Haven't been feeling well lately," he said. "Got some old fashioned slow malaria in my system and a little indigestion on the side, but I think a couple of weeks aboard ship will fix me up. I'm going to New York and take the boat for Panama on Thursday. All the swells wear white duck down there."

Mr. Cannon was asked with some interest concerning President Taft's trip and whether or not it was considered to have helped him materially. "I met a man from San Francisco the other day," he said, "who told me that California was extremely strong for President Taft. I asked him whether it was before or after the president's visit, that the state had voted to adopt the initiative and referendum and recall and woman suffrage."

TURKS RETAKE DERNÄ; KILLING 500 ITALIANS

Remainder of Defending Force Made Prisoners.

Constantinople, Nov. 7.—The government has issued an official statement in which it is asserted that the Turkish forces have occupied Derna after severe fighting, in which 500 Italians were killed.

It is also said that the remainder of the Italian expeditionary force was captured, along with eighteen guns. The Turks had eighty killed and eighty wounded.

American Warship Ordered to Tripoli.

Malta, Nov. 7.—A wireless message received by her commander, Benton C. Becker, ordered the American cruiser Chester to proceed to Tripoli forthwith.

Advices from Tripoli state that the sanitary conditions there are growing worse. The bodies of fifty Arabs, who died either from the cholera or from hunger, were found in the streets of the city.

Pestilential odors emerge from the palm groves, which are still filled with corpses, and this has caused fear of an epidemic.

MUST GO UP SIX MILES

Washington, Nov. 7.—Willis L. Moore, chief of the weather bureau, thinks an aviator might cross the Atlantic ocean if he could take his airship up six miles and remain at that level at least two days.

At that height there is said to be a placid ether level, free from conflicting storms and currents which swirl below.

Chief Moore expressed that opinion to Melvin Vaniman, the aviator, who has been planning a transoceanic flight from Atlantic City. Vaniman asked to have observers stationed at Cape Race, N. F., to warn him of an opportune time for his flight. Officials of the bureau say that it is impracticable because of the constantly changing conditions.

Professor Moore insists that there is no possibility whatever of Vaniman's ship crossing the ocean unless it can fly at the six-mile altitude.

SNAKE IN PLUG TOBACCO

Mount Vernon, Ill., Nov. 7.—A local tobacco chewer had an experience that caused him to give up the weed. As he bit into a twist of a popular brand of tobacco he struck a bone-like substance, which he removed from his mouth, to find that he had bitten off the head of a little snake.

The twist of tobacco was unrolled and the entire snake was found wrapped up in the tobacco.

The chewer has threatened to bring suit against the manufacturer. It is believed that the person who rolled the snake in the twist did it for a joke.

HERE'S A MAN WITH NERVE

San Jose, Cal., Nov. 7.—Joe Wolters, the Chicago motor cycle racer, threw himself from a motor cycle traveling ninety miles an hour, on which the control had been loosened, to prevent a worse accident on the turn.

Wolters escaped with a badly bruised and lacerated forehead. Wolters rode a mile in 45 seconds flat.

Mother Killed as She Leans Over Babe

Kittanning, Pa., Nov. 7.—Mrs. Mary Lehner died in a hospital here as the result of a wound received when her brother-in-law, Douglas Quinn, accidentally discharged the gun he was cleaning. The woman and her husband were leaning over the cradle in which lay their first-born when the charge exploded.

Boy Killed by Fall In Quarry.

Bethlehem, Pa., Nov. 7.—In a sixty-foot fall from a derrick at a slate quarry at Harper's, Alfred Spaedt, aged thirteen years, was killed almost instantly. The boy was going to stop work and return to school.

IS IMMEDIATELY RE-ARRESTED

Story of Attack on Him by Ulrich Is Told In Court and Latter Is Held For Wife Desertion.

New York, Nov. 7.—Henry A. Ulrich, who has been held since March 19 on the charge of assaulting Dr. Booker T. Washington, the negro educator, outside of Ulrich's premises, was acquitted by the justices of the court of special sessions, Justices Moss and Zeller voting for the acquittal and Justice O'Keefe dissenting.

Immediately thereafter he was arrested again on the charge of being a fugitive from justice, preferred by the police authorities of Orange, N. J., where the Essex grand jury in its April term found an indictment against Ulrich for the abandonment of his wife.

In default of securing bail Ulrich had to go to the Tombs. Booker T. Washington left the court room after the decision of the justices on Ulrich's case had been rendered without comment.

When Dr. Washington took the stand to tell about the events leading to the assault made upon him by Ulrich he seemed to be not entirely at ease, and on several occasions during his giving of testimony he answered questions by "I am not quite sure" or "I cannot recall."

In the course of his direct examination Dr. Washington said:

"I was looking at the nameplates in the vestibule when the defendant rushed in and grabbed me around the neck and began to beat me. He said, 'You are trying to break into this house,' and he kept striking me. I defended myself and I believe I hit him once."

"But he was getting the better of me and I pulled open the front door and ran out. There were two or three persons out there, and I heard the man who was assaulting me say, 'Give me that stick.' Then he struck me over the head with it time and again. I grew so weak that I fell down on the sidewalk and still he continued to strike me."

James I. Moore, Ulrich's counsel, wanted to know on cross-examination who it was that Washington wanted to see in the West Sixty-third street apartment house. Washington answered that it had been one D. C. Smith, the auditor of Tuskegee, and that he had been under the impression that Smith was stopping there temporarily with a family by the name of McClure.

Later, after Mrs. Lora Alvarez, who lived in the same apartment house, and who was known by some as Mrs. Ulrich, had testified that on the night of the assault Washington had followed her when she was out giving a French bulldog an airing on Broadway. Dr. Washington was recalled by the prosecution to deny that he had followed Mrs. Alvarez.

"I never followed any woman in my life," the witness said with a sharp shake of the head.

When Mrs. Alvarez was called for the defense she said that the first time she left the house that evening she came upon Washington stooping over and looking through the keyhole in the door of the apartment of Francis J. Revette, on the first floor and just within the entrance door of the apartment house.

"I came upon him so suddenly he didn't have time to straighten up," was the way the witness described the encounter. "He didn't say anything, but turned and walked out of the house behind me. I came back later to take another dog out to walk, and Dr. Washington was on the steps of the house. Later I saw him standing in the middle of Broadway looking at me as I was crossing at Sixty-third street and I almost ran home."

The witness said she told Ulrich of the negro accosting her and Ulrich went out and assaulted Dr. Washington.

STRIPPED THE LOUVRE.

Restitution of Works of Art After Napoleon's Downfall.

The Louvre has known a still blacker day than that on which "La Gioconda" was abstracted. This was Sept. 23, 1815, when formal restitution had to be made of the pictures looted during the conquests of Napoleon. Councils attended from fourteen different states. The lion's share was obtained, curiously enough, by the representative of Cassel, who recovered no fewer than 421 pictures. Austria recovered 323, Spain 284, Holland 210 and Prussia 119. Altogether 2,905 pictures were removed, together with a number of statues, bas-reliefs, bronzes, wood carvings, canons and enameled.

Sir Walter Scott in his "Life of Napoleon" gives a graphic account of the removal of the masterpieces, which were being frantically copied by enthusiastic students until the last moment before their departure. Thanks to the exertions of Baron Denon, who was then director of the Louvre, a certain number of stolen pictures were retained, among these being the finest example of Paolo Veronese extant, "The Marriage at Cana." The gallery, however, was left with only 270 pictures and remained closed until the vacant spaces had been filled, mainly with the works of French artists.—Fall Mail Gazette.

The farmers in the dry belt who have been prevented from thrashing their scanty yield of wheat through unusually heavy rains, which have prevailed lately, have the fact to console them that these rains held captive in the mellow soil and properly conserved by a fine surface mulch next spring, will insure a crop next season.

WHEN TO DISPOSE OF DAIRY CATTLE.

There is a more or less general belief that the milk of the cow deteriorates as she gets older. There can be no question that she requires more food in proportion to her size than she did in her prime, and, of course, there is a continued depreciation in her value for food, for the older she gets the less the sum that will be received from the butcher for her. The ordinary practice on many farms is, therefore, to consider that the animal is best disposed of for beef when she has produced five or six calves, says the American Cultivator. Exceptions are, of course, numerous, and cows of ten or twelve years old or even older are sometimes seen in the herds of dairymen who are keen enough business men to be able to justify their practice by the results. Inquiries that have been made from time to time seem to show that the view that there is any rapid deterioration after the cow has reached her prime—say at six years old—is not warranted, nor has it yet been proved that the milk itself is poorer in quality.

The Ayrshire is the dairy rustler of all the dairy breeds, thriving and paying a profit where other breeds can hardly exist because she is a vigorous feeder and not at all dainty in her appetite, eating with a relish everything that comes in her way in the line of forage, good grass, poor grass and browse. All is food for the Ayrshire cow. One of the most famous bulls of the breed is Howie's Fizzaway, shown here. He is owned by S. F. Converse & Sons, Woodville, N. Y.

The rule to keep a cow as long as her yield is profitable is, therefore, one that can be commended as satisfactory. Particularly should it be followed in the case of an animal of superior quality, for there is another point to be considered. While there is never any absolute certainty that a good milker will produce good milkers—there is no certainty about anything in breeding—it is recognized that the milking habit is transmitted and that a good milker is more likely than a bad one to produce heifers that will take high rank in the milking herd.

There is no reason for fearing that the calves produced by a cow late in life are less likely than those born earlier to inherit the good qualities of their dam. There may, perhaps, be a falling off in vigor in the produce of animals in old age, but even this is doubtful, and when the custom is followed of using a young male to compensate for the greater age of the cow, this consideration is not likely to be of much importance. Those who are engaged in the building up of good milking herds would therefore be justified in breeding from their best cows as long as possible, and even in straining a point in their favor on the question of immediate profitable return.

Age of the Boar.
A boar may be used with advantage from the age of nine months to five years; indeed, this is the best period of his life, although in all parts of the country farmers and others have no scruples whatever in breeding from much younger animals, sometimes even under six months old. This is a most unwise practice, as it prevents them from properly maturing. Some persons, however, who have watched with great keenness the effects of breeding, maintain that an old boar is not only the most prolific, but produces the most vigorous and perfect offspring, especially when he is mated with sows which approach him in age.—W. R. Gilbert.

Ration For a Dairy Cow.
A very satisfactory ration for dairy cows can be made by letting each animal have daily thirty pounds silage and all the mixed hay she will consume. A combination consisting of 300 pounds bran, 400 pounds corn chop and 100 pounds cottonseed meal will go very nicely with the roughage. One pound of this mixture for each three and a half pounds average testing milk produced ought to give very satisfactory results. If the cows do not respond as much as the feeder thinks they should, one-half to one pound of oilmeal might be added to the above ration.—Hoard's Dairyman.

Feeding the Colt.
Colts cannot be kept looking well or doing their best when fed dry feed alone, especially if they be allowed to stuff themselves with hay. If they run with their dams and have plenty of green grass they are at their best. In the absence of grass the silo will supply the best substitute and alfalfa hay the next best.

Clean Wool Pays Best.
Hay troughs should be so fixed that particles will not fall through and become entangled in the fleece. Foreign matter of any sort in the fleece reduces its value.

A friend who is a careful student of bird life and habits calls attention to the interesting difference in quality between the songs of Mississippi valley and Dakota plains meadow larks, the notes of the latter, in his opinion, due to a drier condition of atmosphere, being sweeter and clearer than those of their more easterly cousins.

AN EPISODE OF WARTIME DAYS

Treachery Fails to Separate Husband and Wife.

On the James river some miles below Richmond is a plantation manor house that was built in 1860. About the middle of the last century the owner of the estate was a widow, Mrs. Margaret Ritchie, who had splendid twin daughters, Barbara and Elizabeth. Mrs. Ritchie was very wealthy and very ambitious. She took her daughters to Europe with a view to their marrying noblemen. A German baron proposed for Barbara and was accepted by the mother, who did not consult her daughter in the matter, intending, if necessary, to enforce obedience. The mother did not know that Barbara had a love affair with a lieutenant in the United States army, Theodore Benton, a fine young fellow, but without a cent in the world except his pay.

On her return home Barbara met Lieutenant Benton at one of the houses facing the capitol over which soon was to float the Confederate flag. Already there were mutterings of the great struggle to come. Benton was a northern man, and both knew that this would be an additional reason why Mrs. Ritchie would never consent to their marriage. Barbara told her lover of the contract her mother had entered into in her behalf abroad. Benton urged her to marry him at once without her mother's consent, but she dared not. Soon after, while Benton and Barbara were still in Richmond, came the news of the firing on Fort Sumter. Benton hastened to find Barbara, told her that he must at once make his way north and again urged her to marry him. She consented, a clergyman was called, and the two were made man and wife. Benton reached Washington safely. Barbara went home to her mother and broke the news of her marriage.

The next summer those at the Ritchie plantation listened every day for a week to the distant boom of cannon in the battles about Richmond. Then the sounds, like a storm that had come, roared from the top of Malvern hill, but a short distance away. Evening had come and with it only the crackling of rifles on the picket line when a young officer rode up to the plantation, announced himself as Lieutenant Theodore Benton and, upon being told that the family were there, demanded to see his wife.

Mrs. Ritchie came into the drawing room and received him with a haughty manner by no means softened by the fact that he was an invader of her state and her plantation. She told him that Barbara was ill and that she did not wish to see him. When the war ended she would apply for an annulment of the marriage. Benton flung refused to believe the statement. Since he was with an army Mrs. Ritchie could not have him ejected. She thereupon resorted to strategy.

"If my daughter comes into this room and confirms what I have said will you believe her?"

"I will."

Half an hour later a young girl stood upon the threshold, pale apparently with illness. Benton, seeing what appeared to be the shadow of his wife, stepped forward. The girl motioned him back.

"Theodore," she said, "I did wrong in marrying you without my mother's consent. Go away. I wish never to see you again."

Two years later Grant laid a pontoon bridge across the James, advanced to Petersburg and besieged the place. During the passage of the river rode up to the Ritchie plantation and without dismounting handed a negro a note addressed to Mrs. Theodore Benton.

Are you of the same mind as in the summer of 1862? If so, I will go away, and when you wish an annulment of our marriage I will not oppose it.

THEODORE.

In a few minutes Barbara appeared at the door and between hysterical tears and laughter held out her arms. Benton sprang from his horse to her embrace.

The first piece of news the husband received was that Mrs. Ritchie had died; the second was an explanation of the reconciliation which had occurred when Benton had been there before. Mrs. Ritchie was a woman who, when her mind was made up, would stop at no means which she regarded legitimate to accomplish her object. She considered that her daughter had been stolen from her. Therefore she had a right to possess herself of her own property. She would not lie. She had asked Benton, "If my daughter comes into this room and confirms what I have said, will you believe her?" Then she ordered Elizabeth to personate her sister, Elizabeth, without strength of character to resist her mother, had done as she was told. Barbara on the arrival of her husband had been locked in her room and had been committed until after her mother's death, when her sister confessed and begged forgiveness.

Barbara, when she learned how she had been misrepresented to her husband, was in agony. She had resolved to go north in search of him when the Union troops appeared. Benton sent a note to his commanding officer announcing that he had found a loving wife and asking for a leave. It was granted, and that night the wedding was celebrated.

Not Much of a Diplomat.
"Do you think," she asked after they had settled their thirty-seventh quarrel, "you would be happier if you had never met me?"

"Oh, come, dear," he replied, "what's the use starting the fuss all over again?"—Chicago Record-Herald.

The national apple show, the greatest event of the year horticulturally, will be held in Spokane, Wash., this year, the date set being Nov. 23-30.

HOW LANGFORD CAME TO LET CAPONI STAY.

Sam Langford journeyed to Winnipeg, Man., a few years ago to battle Tony Caponi. Winnipeg was the latter's stamping ground. The night of the fight a delegation drifted into Langford's dressing room.

"If you knock out Caponi," the spokesman announced, "the lights will go out and five men will take turns blazing away at you with their Gatlings."

The battle started. Caponi kept wading into Sam, while the latter just stood off and jabbed. In the seventh round Caponi drove a crushing left flush on Sam's jaw. The latter got sore. He also figured that all the gun talk was "bull." Like a wild tiger he started after Caponi and with lefts and rights battered him over the ring. Measuring Tony, Sam slammed over a right, and the latter began to sink to the floor. The lights began to flicker, and suddenly all was dark.

From the ring came a loud shriek. "For goodness' sake, turn on dem lights."

And when they blazed again Sam was standing in the ring supporting Caponi. That fight went the limit.

Davenport of Maroons Quits Football.
Ira Davenport, the University of Chicago's great quarter mile runner and last year a member of the varsity eleven, playing in the backfield, has decided to devote all of his attention to track athletics and will not play football again.

FORWARD PASSES.

Brown has developed another star in Crowther, his diminutive halfback. He has been the feature of several of Brown's games, making many spectacular runs.

Michigan seems also to have a one man team, as Thompson, their half back, made all the touchdowns against Case school recently and seemed to be about the whole show.

Brown's interference this season is the best thing in that line that has been seen for a decade. Sprackling follows it like a deer, and it seems almost impossible to break up.

Football critics the country over are surprised at the remarkably strong showing that the small eleven has been making this fall. They can advance no particular reason for the form reversal.

One of the most eminent physicians of the country states that a vast majority of the misery folks suffer from ill health could be prevented by knowledge of simple laws of health and making the most possible of the aid to be got from nutritious food, sunshine and fresh air. His statement, if trustworthy, means that if people would live as they ought to live the medical profession would practically be put out of business.

"Sunday Folks."

When Dr. John Cairns went from Scotland to Ireland for rest and travel in 1864 he was at once delighted by discovering from the guides who showed him about that most of the landed gentry were "Sunday folks."

"That's a fine castle," he would say, pointing to a big house set like a crown on some rocky hill.

"Yes, sorr," said his guide. "'Tis Sir O'Connor's," or "'Tis Sir Rory O'More's." He always added, "He's a Sunday mon."

At last Dr. Cairns grew curious.

"What is a Sunday man?" he asked.

"Well, sorr, it be a mon that has so many writs out agin him for debt that he stays shut up tight in his house all the week and only comes out on Sunday, when the law protects him."

Elephants Can't Jump.

"There is one thing no one has ever seen an elephant do either in a circus or out of it, and that is to jump," said a keeper in the Central park menagerie.

"The fact is an elephant cannot jump. Because of his great weight he cannot take all four feet off the ground at once. He can make a 100 yard dash at the rate of twenty miles an hour, which is going some, but if he was pursuing an enemy and came to a deep ditch eight feet across he would have to stop short, because it is too wide for him to step it and he is unable to jump.

An elephant is a great coward. He will have a fit if a rabbit runs between his feet. He has tremendous strength, but he doesn't know it."—New York Sun.
